NATIONAL COOPERATIVE HIGHWAY RESEARCH PROGRAM

Systematic, well-designed research provides the most effective approach to the solution of many problems facing highway administrators and engineers. Often, highway problems are of local interest and can best be studied by highway departments individually or in cooperation with their state universities and others. More predominantly, however, the need for more efficient, economical, and safer highway transportation and the importance of meshing with other modes and other societal concerns lead to national problems of increasing complexity. A coordinated program of high-quality cooperative research provides a highly effective approach to such problems.

In recognition of these needs, the highway administrators of the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials (AASHTO) initiated in 1962 an objective national highway research program employing modern scientific techniques. AASHTO's program is supported on a continuing basis by funds from participating member states of the Association and receives the full cooperation and support of the Federal Highway Administration, United States Department of Transportation.

The Transportation Research Board of the National Academies was requested by the Association to administer AASHTO's research program because of the Board's recognized objectivity and understanding of modern research practices. The Board is uniquely suited for this purpose: it maintains an extensive committee structure from which authorities on any highway transportation subject may be drawn; it possesses avenues of communications and cooperation with federal, state, and local governmental agencies, universities, and industry; its relationship to its parent organization, the National Academies, a private, nonprofit institution, is an insurance of objectivity; and it maintains a full-time research correlation staff of specialists in highway transportation matters to bring the findings of research directly to those who are in a position to use them.

Research programs are developed annually by AASHTO on the basis of research needs identified by the highway and transportation departments, by committees of AASHTO, and by the Federal Highway Administrator. The programs are then referred for administration through the Transportation Research Board, and research projects addressing the specific needs are defined by the Board on the basis of the AASHTO problem statements. The projects are advertised widely for proposals, and qualified agencies are selected on the basis of research plans offering the greatest probabilities of success. The research is carried out under contract, and administration and surveillance are responsibilities of a Board-appointed staff.

The needs for highway research are many, and the National Cooperative Highway Research Program is an efficient mechanism for providing timely solutions to problems of mutual concern to many responsible groups. The Program, however, is intended to complement rather than to substitute for or duplicate other highway research programs.

THE NATIONAL ACADEMIES

Advisers to the Nation on Science, Engineering, and Medicine

The National Academy of Sciences is a private, nonprofit, self-perpetuating society of distinguished scholars engaged in scientific and engineering research, dedicated to the furtherance of science and technology and to their use for the general welfare. Upon the authority of the charter granted to it by the Congress in 1863, the Academy has a mandate that requires it to advise the federal government on scientific and technical matters. Dr. Ralph J. Cicerone is president of the National Academy of Sciences.

The National Academy of Engineering was established in 1964, under the charter of the National Academy of Sciences, as a parallel organization of outstanding engineers. It is autonomous in its administration and in the selection of its members, sharing with the National Academy of Sciences the responsibility for advising the federal government. The National Academy of Engineering also sponsors engineering programs aimed at meeting national needs, encourages education and research, and recognizes the superior achievements of engineers. Dr. C. D. Mote, Jr., is president of the National Academy of Engineering.

The Institute of Medicine was established in 1970 by the National Academy of Sciences to secure the services of eminent members of appropriate professions in the examination of policy matters pertaining to the health of the public. The Institute acts under the responsibility given to the National Academy of Sciences by its congressional charter to be an adviser to the federal government and, upon its own initiative, to identify issues of medical care, research, and education. Dr. Victor J. Dzau is president of the Institute of Medicine.

The National Research Council was organized by the National Academy of Sciences in 1916 to associate the broad community of science and technology with the Academy's purposes of furthering knowledge and advising the federal government. Functioning in accordance with general policies determined by the Academy, the Council has become the principal operating agency of both the National Academy of Sciences and the National Academy of Engineering in providing services to the government, the public, and the scientific and engineering communities. The Council is administered jointly by both Academies and the Institute of Medicine. Dr. Ralph J. Cicerone and Dr. C. D. Mote, Jr., are chair and vice chair, respectively, of the National Research Council.

The Transportation Research Board is one of six major divisions of the National Research Council. The mission of the Transportation Research Board is to provide leadership in transportation innovation and progress through research and information exchange, conducted within a setting that is objective, interdisciplinary, and multimodal. The Board's varied activities annually engage about 7,000 engineers, scientists, and other transportation researchers and practitioners from the public and private sectors and academia, all of whom contribute their expertise in the public interest. The program is supported by state transportation departments, federal agencies including the component administrations of the U.S. Department of Transportation, and other organizations and individuals interested in the development of transportation. www.TRB.org

PREFACE

By Christopher Hedges

Manager

National Cooperative Highway Research Program

The Transportation Research Board's most recent edition of Critical Issues in Transportation highlights the lack of reliability and resilience of our transportation systems. Many of our highway systems in urban areas are operating at capacity for much of the day. Our population and economy continue to grow and traffic volumes are at record levels, but transportation agencies are unable to keep up with the rising demand for the movement of people and goods. Travel times and delays have increased, as have the prices of goods shipped by truck. Traffic congestion exacerbates air quality problems and inhibits emergency evacuations. Departments of transportation (DOTs) are under growing pressure to improve efficiencies and find needed revenue sources.

This year's cover design highlights one of the strategies being employed to reduce traffic congestion. Over the past few decades, the concept of managed lanes has matured as a way to improve the efficiency of our transportation systems. Managed lanes allow DOTs to control the use of traffic lanes by restricting them to certain kinds of vehicles at certain times of the day or by charging a fee for the use of those lanes. High-occupancy vehicle (HOV) lanes are one of the oldest forms of managed lanes, which is readily apparent from the vehicles in the lower photo on the cover. Bus-only and truck-only lanes have been implemented in many jurisdictions.

However, since they were introduced in the mid-1990s, high-occupancy toll (HOT) lanes have captured the attention of transportation agencies and the general public. Using HOT lanes, DOTs can vary toll fees based on factors such as the time of day and number of vehicle occupants. HOT lanes are becoming more and more prevalent, due in part to federal policies encouraging the use of congestion pricing, and the development of technologies that facilitate their implementation, such as electronic toll collection, variable message signs, variable speed limit signs, and closed-circuit monitoring. HOT lanes have been implemented in California (I-15 and SR-91), Illinois (I-55), Houston (I-10 and US-290), Denver (I-25), Minneapolis (I-394), Washington, D.C. (I-95), and many more states. HOT lanes have proven successful in reducing annual travel time, improving reliability, saving fuel, and reducing emissions. As the use of HOT lanes continues to grow, they will generate new questions and new issues for DOTs: financial strategies, revenue distribution, road user equity, multi-agency planning, interoperability, and so on. Very soon, connected and automated vehicles will create a whole new set of opportunities and challenges to control the flow of traffic on our nation's streets and highways.

The National Cooperative Highway Research Program (NCHRP) has been asked to provide guidance to the states on this high-priority topic. Guidelines for implementing managed lanes are being developed under NCHRP Project 15-49 and should be ready for distribution in 2015. Previous NCHRP research has analyzed the performance of managed lanes and the results have been incorporated into the Highway Capacity Manual.

Of course, guidance for managed lanes is only one example of current research under way at NCHRP. In 2014, NCHRP delivered practical guidance on planning for extreme weather events and disasters, bridge redundancy and safety, accelerating innovation, contract delivery, environmental sustainability, knowledge management, pavement design, and many other topics. NCHRP has also released six volumes in a series addressing long-term strategic issues facing the transportation industry.

The success of NCHRP depends largely on the volunteers that guide our work from problem identification, project selection, solicitation and selection of contractors, and monitoring progress to implementing the results. We owe a deep debt of gratitude to the more than 2,600 volunteers on our project panels, as well as the members and staff of our governing body and sponsoring agencies who contribute in one way or another to the program. We hope that NCHRP's body of work helps you to fulfill your agency's mission and goals, and we look forward to serving the U.S. transportation community into the future.

SUMMARY of PROGRESS

December 31

INTRODUCTION

The National Cooperative Highway Research Program (NCHRP) is a unique contract research effort designed to respond to the practical needs of state departments of transportation (DOTs). The Transportation Research Board (TRB) administers the program, for which the state DOTs fund, select, and oversee the research. NCHRP is an applied research program, and every possible effort is made to help administrators and practitioners put the findings to early use in the form of policies, procedures, specifications, and standards.

During 2014 NCHRP completed 141 research projects, launched 50 new projects, continued 15 projects, and approved 58 new and continuation projects for 2015. This Summary of Progress provides, in Tables 1 through 6, concise lists of published research and, in Table 7, a list of the 2,870 projects undertaken since 1962. The Summary of Progress also presents detailed information about the operation of NCHRP through the Standing Committee on Research (SCOR) of the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials (AASHTO).

The following descriptions explain the organization and purpose of each of the tables within this Summary of Progress.

TABLE 1. Reports

Final reports and deliverables of NCHRP research projects that are published in the Report series are listed with titles and number of pages in Table 1, beginning with Report 1, published in 1964, and ending with Report 796, published in 2014. To the right of the report number is the project number, which identifies the research project from the time it is funded. The project number, which references the research problem area (see NCHRP Classification System on page 9), can be cross-referenced to Table 7 to obtain further information about the project (research agency, contract amount, start date, end date, and status).

TABLE 2. Synthesis Reports

Final reports of NCHRP Syntheses of Highway Practice are listed with titles and number of pages in Table 2, beginning with Synthesis 1, published in 1969, and ending with Synthesis 466, published in 2014. Synthesis projects are produced under Continuation Project 20-05. The topic number identifying the project from the time it is funded does not reference the NCHRP problem area and is not cross-referenced to Table 7.

TABLE 3. Research Results Digests

Research Results Digests of NCHRP project findings are published to summarize specific findings and encourage implementation. Table 3 lists digests with titles and number of pages, beginning with Digest 1, published in 1968, and ending with Digest 390, published in 2014. The project number, which references the research problem area (see NCHRP Classification System on page 9), can be cross-referenced to Table 7 to obtain further information about the project.

TABLE 4. Legal Research Digests

Legal Research Digests are listed with titles and number of pages in Table 4, beginning with No. 1, published in 1988, and ending with No. 63, published in 2014. Legal research projects are produced under Continuation Project 20-06, established in 1968 to assemble, analyze, and evaluate operating practices, administrative procedures, and legal issues associated with highway and transportation projects. These digests are not cross-referenced to Table 7.

TABLE 5. Web-Only Documents

Some contractor-prepared reports or supporting materials are made available as web-only PDF files. Table 5 lists these documents, beginning with No. 1, published in 1997, and ending with No. 208, published in 2014. The project number can be cross-referenced to Table 7 to obtain further information about the project.

TABLE 6. CD-ROMs

This table lists CD-ROMs containing stand-alone publications and supplemental materials to selected research reports. The project numbers may be cross-referenced to Table 7 for additional information.

TABLE 7. Project Status, FY 1963 through FY 2015

This table lists the status (completed or in progress) of most NCHRP projects initiated from the beginning of the program through FY 2015 (as of December 31, 2014). Also listed are the research agency, contract amount, starting date, and completion date. Projects are grouped in problem area order and listed chronologically within each problem area; see the NCHRP Classification System on page 9. Table 7 includes research projects that have been completed and published as NCHRP Reports (Table 1), Research Results Digests (Table 3), Web-Only Documents (Table 5), and CD-ROMs (Table 6).

The critical role of state DOTs

The state DOTs created NCHRP in 1962 to find answers to common problems in highway planning, design, construction, operation, and maintenance. The state DOTs, through AASHTO, are the sole sponsors of NCHRP. The program is operated in cooperation with the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) and is administered through the Transportation Research Board of the National Academies.

Fifty-two years after the program's creation, state DOTs continue to be the driving force behind NCHRP research. The members of AASHTO—the DOTs of the 50 states and the District of Columbia—come together every year to fund, select, and oversee NCHRP research projects aimed at addressing the states' most critical research needs.

“NCHRP is highly leveraged, and it makes sense to look there first to find solutions to our transportation challenges.”

*David Jared,
Chief of Research and Development Branch,
Georgia DOT*

States provide the funding for NCHRP

Each year, state DOTs voluntarily commit to NCHRP research 5.5 percent of the State Planning and Research (SPR) portion of their Federal-Aid-Highway funds. FHWA requests and pools these state contributions and, under a cooperative agreement, makes them available for research contracts and for administration of the program through TRB.

Available funds for NCHRP have remained strong during the past 20 years, rising along with increases in the Federal-Aid-Highway funds provided by Congress and the corresponding growth of SPR funds. The Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA) resulted in a funding level of approximately $17 million for NCHRP for fiscal years 1992 through 1997. This was increased by more than 50 percent on average in fiscal years 1998 through 2003 by the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA-21), which Congress extended, resulting in $35.4 million for FY 2004.

The most recent federal legislation—the Safe, Accountable, Flexible, Efficient Transportation Equity Act: A Legacy for Users (SAFETEA-LU) and the Moving Ahead for Progress in the 21st Century Act (MAP-21)—resulted in an average of $40 million being programmed for fiscal years 2011 through 2015. See Exhibit S-1.

States select NCHRP research projects

A thorough process of consultation and review gives states a strong voice in selecting NCHRP research projects. The process is led by AASHTO SCOR, which provides oversight to NCHRP. SCOR is composed of 16 state DOT members (four from each of the four AASHTO regions) plus ex officio members from FHWA and other federal agencies. In addition, the SCOR chair must be the CEO of one of the state DOTs, and the vice-chair is the chair of the AASHTO Research Advisory Committee (RAC), composed of research directors from all AASHTO member departments.

In July of every year, SCOR invites the submission of research problem statements from three authorized sources: (1) AASHTO member transportation departments, (2) the chairs of AASHTO's committees and subcommittees, and (3) FHWA.

Research in Progress

Searching TRB databases helps submitters of problem statements avoid duplicating research.

Individuals from the three sources have until September 15 to submit their ideas, describing why the research they are proposing represents an immediate need and is of interest to the majority of states. The problem must be one that can be handled effectively under a cooperative program and have a high probability of success. Submitters are asked to search the relevant literature in TRID—a database that combines the records of TRB's Transportation Research Information Services (TRIS) and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) Joint Transport Research Centre's International Transport Research

Documentation—and the Research in Progress (RiP) database to determine if similar efforts are already under way or if satisfactory answers are already available.

NCHRP and FHWA staff and other technical experts review all problem statements for technical merit and request clarification from submitters when appropriate. At the same time, NCHRP panels and staff also prepare recommendations for continuation of projects begun in earlier years.

In December, NCHRP prepares a report of proposed continuation projects and new problem candidates. This report is sent to members of SCOR and RAC as a ballot for rating each of the candidates according to need, value, and appropriateness. The ballot results are used to establish a preliminary ranking to help structure the discussion of candidates by SCOR at its March meeting.

In March, based on expected funding for the next fiscal year, SCOR allocates funds for new and continuation projects. Once the program is developed, SCOR sends a report to the AASHTO Board of Directors (CEOs of each of the member departments) requesting final approval. A favorable vote of at least two-thirds of the member departments is required. In addition, each year's program must be approved by FHWA and accepted by the National Academies.

“[NCHRP Report 590] will dramatically improve our method for optimizing bridge projects.”

*Todd Thompson,
Bridge Management Engineer,
South Dakota DOT*

In each of the last several years, approximately 120 problem statements and 20 requests for continuation have been balloted. SCOR typically funds a number of requests for continuation projects each year. These include quick-response research for AASHTO committees; research carried out under NCHRP subprograms, such as the Synthesis series, the IDEA program, and the domestic scan program; and projects from previous years that request additional funds to build on their success with additional research. In recent years, SCOR has funded approximately 40 new projects each year.

A cumulative total of 2,870 research contracts have resulted from all NCHRP yearly programs through 2014. The FY 2015 program will add another 46 new contracts and 12 continuations. See Exhibit S-2.

Exhibit S-2. Number of Research Projects Selected by SCOR, FY 2011 to FY 2015

Projects	FY 2011	FY 2012	FY 2013	FY 2014	FY 2015

Total project funds	$26,534,246	$31,470,000	$26,465,000	$29,916,000	$28,630,000

Funding for the FY 2015 program is expected in early 2015, permitting execution of contracts and initiation of research. SCOR will formulate the FY 2016 program in March 2015 based on proposals solicited in July 2014, the beginning of another cycle of NCHRP research.

States help guide NCHRP research projects

Each research project is assigned to a panel of subject experts who are very knowledgeable in the project area and who are looked to for technical guidance and counsel throughout the research and reporting phases. A broad search is made for these individuals, and TRB usually receives about four to five times as many nominees as can be used in the available panel positions.

Panel members do not act as consultants or advisors to project investigators; they may not submit proposals for research. All members serve without compensation, and their total yearly contribution to the program adds up to thousands of staff-days. The panel members are drawn from all walks of professional life, with heavy dependence on practitioners from AASHTO member departments. See Exhibit S-3.

Exhibit S-3. Affiliations of Panel Members on Active Projects (Current number of active projects = 353)

Panel members assume a number of key responsibilities for helping ensure the quality of NCHRP research. The project panel analyzes the initial problem that was submitted, develops a final project scope and objectives, and then prepares a formal research project statement by which proposals are solicited from qualified research agencies. The panels review the research proposals, recommend contract awards, and provide counsel to the NCHRP staff members responsible for management of the research contracts. Finally, the panels review final reports for acceptability and for accomplishment of the approved research plan.

A model for cooperative research

The model developed for NCHRP not only has functioned effectively for more than 50 years but also has served as the foundation for five other successful applied research programs managed by TRB. TRB now has national cooperative research programs in the fields of highways, transit, airports, hazardous materials, freight, and rail transportation. Beyond the walls of TRB, much of the research community looks to NCHRP as a model of what works. Many of the research programs in state departments of transportation use procedures modeled on NCHRP. From other units of the National Academies to industry associations in a variety of fields, experts approach NCHRP for advice on how best to manage cooperative research.

NCHRP works closely with transportation stakeholders and consumers of research—such as state bridge engineers through AASHTO’s Highway Subcommittee on Bridges and Structures—to better understand and meet their research needs.

Stakeholders drive success

What makes this model so effective? Why has NCHRP been supported by voluntary contributions for 50 years? One of the key success factors is stakeholder involvement. Those who will ultimately benefit from the research are involved from beginning to end, starting with the identification of research ideas that might address their day-to-day problems. Once these ideas are identified, stakeholders review them and select and prioritize projects that will provide the greatest benefit. When projects are selected, stakeholders help to craft requests for proposals, and then provide technical guidance throughout the project to ensure that the research will provide practical, beneficial, and implementable results. When an NCHRP research project is completed, every step has been taken along the way to make sure the research product will address a real need in the real world.

An objective eye

Another key element in the NCHRP model is objectivity. Operating within the structure and guidelines of the nonprofit National Academies, the NCHRP does not own roads, make laws, or set policy. It provides a neutral forum for objective research without bias or prejudice. NCHRP does not bend to changing political whims or a need to generate profit. NCHRP panels bring diverse stakeholder groups together with a common interest for a common objective.

The program is not intended to be “all things to all people.” NCHRP research is effective because each project is directly targeted at a current problem. When a project is completed, there is an audience waiting to implement the results.

Investing wisely in research

Further, by working on shared, national problems and issues, the NCHRP model is designed to seek solutions effectively and efficiently. Every dollar spent on NCHRP research is a dollar saved by each of the state and local agencies that would need to seek independent solutions to its problems in the absence of a coordinated, national program. The reduction of duplication allows all stakeholders to leverage their funds for a common goal and provides them a body of knowledge far in excess of what they could achieve on their own.

The NCHRP model is designed to spend its stakeholders' dollars wisely and to save them time, money, and lives. Transportation research helps in a variety of ways—for example, minimizing the time wasted by the travelling public due to roadway congestion, keeping down vehicle costs and commuting times, improving the efficiency and cost effectiveness of government programs, reducing vehicle crashes, and lessening the tragic loss of life and its impacts on families and communities. NCHRP fosters innovation in design, construction, and materials that results in better-performing, longer-lasting products and savings for road users.

Competitive investigator selection

Finally, one of the most significant success factors is the competitive process used to select NCHRP contractors. Each project panel develops a request for proposals that is posted publicly and can be responded to by any private firm or academic institution. Contractors are selected based on the qualifications of their team members and the merit of their research approach.

“We can see how many millions of dollars of high-priority research is being funded given our state's contribution to NCHRP. It's a huge value.”

*Cameron Kergaye,
Director of Research, Utah DOT*

Topics across the spectrum of highway concerns

The subject matter of NCHRP projects extends across the full spectrum of concerns within the highway industry and demonstrates AASHTO's interest in acquiring answers to the many acute problems facing DOT administrators and engineers. Problems submitted as candidates for funding each year are given a unique identification number based on the NCHRP Classification System. See Exhibit S-4.

This identification number, corresponding to the specific problem area addressed, is part of the number that identifies a research project throughout its life cycle, until the project is given an NCHRP publication number when the final deliverable is published. For example, NCHRP Project 08-78 identifies a project in Area 8 (Forecasting). NCHRP Project 25-40 identifies a project in Area 25 (Impact Analysis). Once research was completed, final reports for these projects were published, respectively, as NCHRP Report 770: Estimating Bicycling and Walking for Planning and Project Development: A Guidebook and NCHRP Report 792: Long-Term Performance and Life-Cycle Costs of Stormwater Best Management Practices.

Table 7 of the Summary of Progress uses this project numbering system to present information about every NCHRP project from FY 1963 through FY 2015. The projects are grouped sequentially from Area 1: Design—Pavements through Area 25: Transportation Planning—Impact Analysis.

Methods used across the United States for analyzing bicyclist and pedestrian traffic informed NCHRP Project 08-78, which led to the publication of NCHRP Report 770: Estimating Bicycling and Walking for Planning and Project Development: A Guidebook.

NCHRP Project 25-40 led to the publication of NCHRP Report 792: Long-Term Performance and Life-Cycle Costs of Stormwater Best Management Practices, which assesses such techniques as vegetated swales that trap particulate pollutants, promote infiltration, and slow stormwater runoff.

SELECTING THE BEST INVESTIGATORS

A rigorous, competitive process

NCHRP does not award grants for research. Rather, the program invites competing proposals from prospective investigators who can demonstrate capability and experience in the problem area to be researched. Eligible organizations can be from either the public or private sector and include universities, nonprofit institutions, consulting and commercial firms, and individual consultants. Throughout its history, NCHRP has awarded research contracts to agencies headquartered in 47 states, the District of Columbia, Canada, and England. Agencies selected to conduct NCHRP research fall, principally, into two categories—industry/consultant and university/research institute—as shown in Exhibit S-5.

Exhibit S-5. Agency Distribution Across Contracts

	No.*	%	No.*	%	No.*	%	No.*	%	No.*	%
Industry/consultant	36	65	35	59	27	57	33	91	918	55
University/research institute	19	35	23	39	20	43	2	6	684	41
Other	0	0	1	2	0	0	1	3	60	4
Total	55	100%	59	100%	47	100%	36	100%	1,662	100%

* Contract totals do not include the individual topics and tasks for Projects 08-36, 20-07, 20-65, and 25-25 (quick-response research for AASHTO committees); 20-05; 20-06; 20-30; 20-36; 20-44; and 20-68.

Requests for proposals are issued on TRB's website, announced through the weekly TRB E-Newsletter, and distributed to a self-subscription listserv. Proposals must comply with the format outlined in the publication Information and Instructions for Preparing Proposals for the Transportation Research Board's Cooperative Research Programs.

The proposed budget total is not a primary factor in selecting an investigator because the funds available for research are announced in the project statement. Specific budget items in the proposal are reviewed to determine staff allocations and distribution of resources. When the proposed cost exceeds the funds stated to be available, the proposal is rejected on receipt.

The project panels select investigating agencies based on careful evaluation of all proposals and a review of available information on proposers' past performance on other research projects sponsored by NCHRP or others. The successful proposals are retained by panel members for use in monitoring the research. Proposals, panel deliberations, and meeting notes are considered to be privileged information and are not released outside of TRB.

“NCHRP helps us come up with the solutions to provide safer, longer lasting roads, whether we’re talking about design, construction, rehabilitation—any of the challenges that we’re facing.”

*Sandra Larson, Systems Operations
Bureau Director, Iowa DOT*

To support AASHTO's interests, needs, and capital investments, a contract is not signed with the selected agency until the NCHRP staff and project panel are satisfied that the proposed scope of work provides the best probability for a successful outcome. Furthermore, soon after contract execution, the investigating agency is required to submit a Working Plan (an amplified version of the research plan), against which project progress is monitored by the staff and project panel.

NCHRP will provide a debriefing, if requested, to unsuccessful proposers to indicate the technical areas in which their proposals were judged to have weaknesses or deficiencies that were factors in not being selected.

Selection of an agency is made by the responsible project panel considering the following factors*:

- (1) the proposer's demonstrated understanding of the problem;
- (2) the merit of the proposed research approach and methodology;
- (3) experience, qualifications, and objectivity of the research team in the same or closely related problem area;
- (4) the plan for ensuring application of results;
- (5) the proposer's plan for participation by Disadvantaged Business Enterprises—small firms owned and controlled by minorities or women; and
- (6) the adequacy of the facilities and equipment.

The central role of NCHRP professionals

TRB is headquartered at the Keck Center of the National Academies, 500 Fifth St. NW, Washington, D.C.

Once research starts, administrative and technical oversight of progress is performed by NCHRP staff. In-depth oversight by project managers with wide-ranging expertise is an important factor contributing to project success.

In addition to reviewing monthly progress schedules and quarterly progress reports, the project managers maintain frequent contact with the research agencies throughout the contract periods. They review the project's status to learn whether the research is being pursued in line with the approved research plan, and they provide guidance to the investigator in all technical and administrative matters. They also serve as liaisons to the project panels to keep them abreast of progress and to acquire panel guidance and counsel in technical matters, particularly regarding the needs of the DOT practitioner.

The principal investigator has flexibility in managing the project budget up to the point of not materially departing from the approved research plan or exceeding the contract's maximum allowable cost. Any major changes to account for promising new research leads or unproductive lines of study must be approved in advance by the staff and project panel and are authorized through a contract amendment. Agency invoices are checked by the staff for deviations from the approved budget. Based on all oversight activities, the staff members update project status on the NCHRP website. Finally, the staff and panels evaluate the completed research to determine the degree of technical compliance with the contract so that recommendations for contract close-out can be made.

NCHRP project managers encourage research agencies to present results in a form that is directly usable by practitioners in AASHTO member departments.

RESEARCH PRODUCTS

Disseminating research and documenting success

Dissemination of research findings to practitioners is a primary objective of the entire NCHRP research process. Publication of the final report or other deliverables is a key means of dissemination. NCHRP research findings are published in a number of series, which are listed in Tables 1 through 6 of this Summary of Progress. Quantities for these series published over the past five years are shown in Exhibit S-6. Some NCHRP publications produced this year are:

- NCHRP Report 777: A Guide to Regional Transportation Planning for Disasters, Emergencies, and Significant Events presents foundational planning principles and uses case studies, tips, and tools to explain the implementation of these principles in transportation planning for potential multijurisdictional disasters, emergencies, and other major events. [Project 20-59(42)]

- NCHRP Report 785: Performance-Based Analysis of Geometric Design of Highways and Streets presents ways to incorporate performance-based analysis in the project development process. Geometric design decisions that can influence desired project multimodal outcomes are identified as well as analysis tools that can be used to estimate the impacts of those decisions. (Project 15-34A)

- NCHRP Synthesis 455: Alternative Technical Concepts for Contract Delivery Methods documents various methods by which agencies have successfully implemented alternative technical concepts (requests made by proposers specifically for gaining competitive benefit during the bidding or proposal process) during the highway contracting process and identifies methods that promote transparency and fairness, while protecting the industry's right to confidentiality. (Project 20-05/Topic 44-09)

- NCHRP Legal Research Digest 62: Eminent Domain and Fair Market Value in a Depressed Real Estate Market addresses such issues as (1) how condemning agencies and the courts resolve the problem of just compensation in light of declining property values caused by financial calamities beyond the control of property owners and lienholders; (2) what statutory remedies exist; (3) whether the courts have created judicial exceptions to the fair market rule for just compensation; and (4) whether depression-era precedents or other administrative policies provide any guide to condemning agencies and the courts to resolve this problem. (Project 20-06)

- TRB members who have chosen to receive publications in the particular subject area of the report
- About 100 libraries
- TRB representatives in the state DOTs
- Numerous educational institutions
- Liaison representatives from industry and transportation organizations in other countries
- Appropriate TRB panels and committees

NCHRP subprograms

Several "subprograms" are carried out within NCHRP. Results may be published in hard copy, delivered in the form of internal reports and presentations, published on the TRB website, or made available upon request.

Synthesis of Information Related to Highway Problems (Project 20-05)

Administrators, practicing engineers, and researchers continually face highway problems on which much information already exists, either in documented form or in terms of undocumented experience and practice. Unfortunately, this information is often fragmented and scattered, and therefore overlooked. The NCHRP Synthesis series aims to remedy this lack of awareness of existing solutions by assembling and organizing relevant information, practices, and research for particular highway problems.

Legal Problems Arising out of Highway Programs (Project 20-06)

State DOTs have an interest in evaluating the operating practices, administrative procedures, and legal issues associated with planning, design, and construction of transportation projects. Individual state legal experiences need to be compared and made available for possible wider application. This research identifies and evaluates legal options for DOTs, which facilitate the handling of both immediate and long-range needs.

Research for AASHTO and State DOT Leadership (Project 20-24)

NCHRP conducts focused research that addresses and responds to the evolving challenges facing state DOT decisionmakers. Reports from this project deliver timely information on topics including asset management, innovative financing and contracting, performance measures, and e-business, as well as emerging topics such as connected automated vehicles.

NCHRP IDEA Program (Project 20-30)

The Innovations Deserving Exploratory Analysis (IDEA) program funds research into promising but unproven innovations for highway design and construction, materials, operations, maintenance, and other areas of highway systems. A progress report that describes current and completed projects is published annually. A high percentage of products funded by the IDEA program have been successfully implemented.

International Highway Research and Technology (Project 20-36)

The International Highway Research and Technology program provides a coordinated approach to international information sharing and technology exchange. The program's overall objective is to improve highway safety, development, maintenance, and operations through dissemination of innovative technology and successful policies and practices from around the globe.

Domestic Scan Program (Project 20-68)

The NCHRP Domestic Scan Program is broad, considering any innovative practices of high-performing transportation agencies that could be beneficially adopted by other interested agencies. The purpose of each scan and of the program as a whole is to facilitate information sharing and technology exchange among the states and other transportation agencies and to identify actionable items of common interest.

Long-Range Strategic Issues Facing the Transportation Industry (Project 20-83)

AASHTO has invested $7 million to examine strategic issues, both global and domestic, that will likely affect state DOTs over the next 30 to 40 years. Issues examined include potential changes in goods movement and freight; advance adoption of new technologies; preservation, maintenance, and renewal of highway infrastructure; changing transportation energy supplies and alternative fuel sources; and potential impacts of climate change on transportation infrastructure and operations.

The research conducted in NCHRP Project 20-83 has yielded six volumes, published as NCHRP Report 750: Strategic Issues Facing Transportation, that cover long-range planning for various transportation issues.

Quick-response research for AASHTO committees

- Standing Committee on Highways (Project 20-07)

Through this project, the Standing Committee on Highways obtains guidance on an accelerated schedule through a continuing research program geared to the needs of the committee in the development of guides, standards, policies, and other AASHTO activities.

- Standing Committee on Planning (Project 08-36)

The objective of this project is to provide a flexible, ongoing program of quick-response research for the Standing Committee on Planning to improve analytical methods, decision support tools, procedures, and techniques employed by practitioners to support statewide and metropolitan transportation planning, programming, and development.

- Standing Committee on the Environment (Project 25-25)

This project provides flexible, ongoing, quick-response research to the Standing Committee on the Environment. The research is focused on environmental analysis, streamlining, stewardship, and planning to respond effectively to program delivery and project development issues.

- Standing Committee on Public Transportation (Project 20-65)

This project comprises quick-response research tasks to assist in the fulfillment of Standing Committee on Public Transportation responsibilities. Research is carried out on transit planning, operations, transit delivery, and related matters as state involvement in public transportation continues to grow.

The final report

As an applied research program, NCHRP expects final research reports to be presented in language understandable to both administrators and practitioners and in a format that permits easy assimilation and application. The detailed research techniques and analyses in which a researcher would be interested are generally presented in appendixes. NCHRP specifies the style and organization of all reports to guide the researchers in their writing so that AASHTO member departments may obtain the greatest benefit.

NCHRP staff write a foreword to each published report that (1) identifies the fields of specialty of those likely to be most interested in the results and (2) suggests how the results fit into present knowledge and practice. All published reports are offered for sale through TRB's Publications Office. Since 2001, published reports also have been made available electronically on TRB's website. For ready availability to interested parties, unpublished reports are available in hard copy or electronically.

Promoting useful results before publication

NCHRP undertakes a number of activities before formal publication of the final reports to increase the probability that results will be applied:

- Initial research proposals are required to state how the anticipated results can be used to improve practice.
- Panel members—who not only are experts in the particular problem area, but also have a good understanding of practitioner needs—define the research problem and its objectives. Experts from state DOTs play a major role in this task.
- Investigators are selected both for the clarity of their research objectives and the likelihood that the research will be usable and readily implementable.
- Staff and panel members establish agreement with the investigator on what is expected from the project and the researchers in order to meet the needs of the practitioner.
- Project oversight aims to keep the research in line with the approved research plan and ensure that all project developments through final reporting center on practitioner needs.

Implementing research results

Over the years, NCHRP staff and various AASHTO committees have worked together to structure research findings into the best possible form for immediate use by the practitioner. Such joint efforts have facilitated implementation of the findings. AASHTO has provided NCHRP with frequent opportunities for staff and project researchers to go before the association's various committees to present their findings and recommendations directly to the user community. At the request of project panels, NCHRP will provide additional funding to accelerate the implementation of promising products through workshops, presentations, and demonstration projects.

Documenting success

For the past several years, NCHRP has addressed the challenge of documenting or showcasing successful research products. Several approaches are being used, and NCHRP will continue to explore new and better ways to meet this challenge.

Every four years, NCHRP surveys panel members from completed projects to identify known applications of research results. Feedback from these surveys enables NCHRP to confirm high usage and application of research results, to improve the implementation of future research results, and to identify successful applications of research.

These successful applications of NCHRP research are showcased in a series of case studies, “Impacts on Practice,” based on interviews with DOT practitioners. More than 30 of these case studies are posted on the TRB website.

In addition, the interviews with DOT practitioners have identified the various ways that states implement NCHRP research results. NCHRP documents some of these implementation efforts and methods in the “Paths to Practice” series. Two examples are included in the following pages.

- Updating the Authoritative Guide on Capacity
- Safer Intersections for Rural Highways

Updating the Authoritative Guide on Capacity

The Highway Capacity Manual is the go-to source for information about evaluating the capacity of transportation facilities. The latest edition provides practitioners with the most up-to-date analytical tools by incorporating more than $5 million in NCHRP research and drawing on a broad collaborative effort by the transportation community.

Responding to Evolving Practices

For more than 60 years, the Transportation Research Board's Highway Capacity Manual (HCM) has provided engineers with state-of-the-art techniques for analyzing the capacity and level of service for transportation facilities, including roadways, intersections, and roundabouts. The HCM is the definitive guide for transportation engineers worldwide who wish to determine how much traffic a transportation facility can safely accommodate at a prescribed level of service, defined by such performance measures as average traffic speed and travel time.

However, as methods for evaluating capacity and level of service evolve, updates to the HCM are needed to provide transportation practitioners with the best available analytical tools. Since its first publication in 1950, the HCM has seen five editions, the most recent issued in 2010 (www.trb.org/Main/Blurbs/164718.aspx). TRB's 2010 update to the HCM:

- For the first time, provides users with a method for an integrated multimodal analysis of urban streets.
- Addresses active traffic management such as managed lanes and smart lanes.
- Gives planners the tools to quickly determine the size of future facilities.
- Includes an electronic volume with comprehensive case studies.

Paths to Practice

Incorporating a broad range of NCHRP research findings

The 2010 HCM was a major undertaking, incorporating more than $5 million in research from 10 NCHRP projects and two FHWA projects.

One of these projects, NCHRP Project 03-82, improved default values for analyzing capacity and level of service. Engineers use default input values—pedestrian and vehicle flow rates, or road and signal geometries—when there is insufficient local field data for an analysis. The defaults in the previous edition of the HCM did not fully reflect the variety of traffic conditions across the United States and sometimes yielded analyses of limited usefulness.

“NCHRP 03-82 helped improve the accuracy of the most significant default values for the HCM by revising them based on field data from around the United States,” says John Zegeer, principal investigator for NCHRP 03-82, and senior principal engineer at Kittelson & Associates. “This makes analyses of capacity and level of service much more reliable.”

“NCHRP 03-82 helped improve the accuracy of the most significant default values for the HCM.”

Another project, NCHRP 03-64, developed a companion guide to the HCM to show how to apply its methodologies to real-world problems. “Prior to the 2000 edition, the HCM only provided simple example problems to illustrate methodologies,” says Tom

“The HCM's new multimodal analysis tools look at the urban environment from the point of view not just of traffic engineers but of travelers.”

Creasey, transportation planning manager with Stantec. Creasey chaired the NCHRP 03-64 panel and is secretary of the TRB Highway Capacity and Quality of Service (HCQS) Committee, which oversees the HCM. “The companion guide educates users on how to use the HCM for complex problems that require more than plugging numbers into formulas,” Creasey says.

Creasey was also a member of the panel for NCHRP 03-70, which incorporated

Implementation Strategies AT A GLANCE

- Cooperative National Effort: Updating the Highway Capacity Manual involved broad collaboration among TRB, AASHTO, FHWA, and other transportation stakeholders.
- An Ongoing Research Commitment: Refining and building on previous work facilitated the implementation of past successful research.
- Keeping Users in Mind: Transportation practitioners were consulted at multiple stages of the revision process to make sure the new HCM would meet their needs.
- Dissemination through Partners: TRB's capacity committee and the Institute of Transportation Engineers used webinars and other channels to share updates and facilitate use of the new HCM.

methods for the multimodal analysis of urban streets. “The HCM’s new multimodal analysis tools look at the urban environment from the point of view not just of traffic engineers but of travelers,” he says. “The mathematical models were created based on how drivers, pedestrians, bicyclists, and transit users rated their experience of trips.” The update will make the HCM far more useful to planners, helping them to evaluate the trade-offs involved in how various modes share an urban street.

“The manual is larger than any one committee.”

A collaborative effort by the transportation community

The HCM is a definitive guide that embodies decades of research. Updating it was an enormous effort that involved the cooperation of TRB, AASHTO, and FHWA over a number of years. “The manual is larger than any one committee,” says Ray Derr,

TRB senior program officer on NCHRP 03-92, the umbrella project for updating the manual. “Updating it required extensive involvement from the transportation community as a whole.”

Part of that effort involved consulting transportation professionals to make sure the 2010 update would meet their needs. As part of project 03-92, researchers conducted focus groups with HCM users in Florida, Maryland, and Oregon. “These focus groups provided critical insights into the content and organization of the manual,” Derr says.

As it was completed, the HCM was also vetted in a yearlong review process by more than 300 TRB professionals and TRB HCQS Committee members. “The HCQS Committee reviewed results of each project and made an independent determination as to whether they were valid and should be included,” Zegeer says. “Their oversight was critical.” The HCQS also obtained feedback through joint summer meetings with the Institute of Transportation Engineers (ITE) as well as focus groups sponsored by the ITE.

The HCM has a wide reach

Derr, Creasey, and Zegeer agree that the impact of the HCM on transportation infrastructure in the United States cannot be emphasized enough. Its methods are used to determine everything from the number of lanes on streets to the timing of traffic signals. It is also highly influential on the content of capacity manuals worldwide.

“This manual has a huge amount of weight, setting the commonly accepted standards for level of service,” Derr says. “It’s widely used by both local agencies and state DOTs to determine how to keep traffic moving. It is also frequently cited in local regulations.”

To ensure the HCM’s continued relevance, the HCQS was very active in sharing the results of the 2010 update. That included numerous webinars, several of which were co-hosted by ITE, as well as ITE meetings, according to Derr. “The HCQS is a very busy committee,” he says. “Dissemination is a big part of their job.”

“This manual has a huge amount of weight.... It’s widely used by both local agencies and state DOTs to determine how to keep traffic moving.”

Another major route for the impact of the HCM is companion software developed and maintained by the University of Florida’s McTrans Center. “The Highway Capacity Software is frequently updated and faithfully implements HCM procedures,” Derr says, “giving transportation professionals an important tool for applying HCM methodologies.”

Implementation Success

Because of its wide use and impact on transportation professionals worldwide, the HCM is a standout example of a successful implementation of NCHRP research. “It would be hard to think of a better implemented project than the HCM,” Creasey says. “Not only does it meet a demonstrated need, but it has met the challenge of accommodating more and more needs in response to feedback from the user community.”

The result is a manual that is increasingly useful to engineers with each update. “This latest edition significantly changes how engineers evaluate the possible effects of highway projects,” says Zegeer. “It gives them better tools than ever for evaluating capacity and quality of service.”

Safer Intersections for Rural Highways

Right-angle crashes are a problem on median-separated highways, but the most typical solutions for this problem—constructing an interchange or installing traffic signals—are not always the most effective. NCHRP managed research on safer median intersections that led to the expanded use of innovative designs by state transportation agencies. The effects on safety have been dramatic.

Intersections on Rural Highways: A Serious Safety Risk

Median-separated highways provide distinct advantages over undivided roadways by separating traffic, providing a recovery or stopping area for vehicles, and providing space for left-turn vehicles. In many cases, they also provide the same safety and travel time benefits as rural interstates at a lower cost. However, these safety benefits can be diminished by an increase in the frequency and severity of intersection crashes, especially right-angle crashes that occur while a vehicle from a minor road is making a left turn through the median and onto the highway.

J-turns significantly improve rural highway intersection safety by preventing drivers from directly crossing medians and requiring them instead to make a right turn followed by a U-turn.

Because interchanges and traffic lights are not always the most effective or cost-efficient solutions to these problems, transportation agencies are in need of innovative, low-cost designs that can be used to improve the safety of such intersections. To help establish design guidance and safety data for these treatments, NCHRP Project 15-30 was undertaken, resulting in NCHRP Report 650: Median Intersection Design for Rural High-

“In the past, options for improving safety at high-speed rural safety intersections were limited.”

Speed Divided Highways (www.trb.org/main/blurbs/163452.aspx).

The report includes 10 case studies illustrating how various intersection designs have been applied in the field and includes recommendations for updating guidance in the FHWA Manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices and AASHTO’s A Policy on Geometric Design of Highways and Streets, or “Green Book.”

Paths to Practice

An expanded toolbox for state DOTs

NCHRP Report 650 showed that many of the intersection designs examined can significantly improve safety at a lower cost than constructing an interchange. In doing so, the report gives states an expanded set of options for dealing with problem intersections.

“In the past, options for improving safety at high-speed rural intersections were limited,” says Tom Welch, panel chair for NCHRP

15-30 and formerly a highway safety engineer for the Iowa DOT. “Options included a new interchange, which involves major new spending, or installing a traffic signal, which is not guaranteed to improve safety and may even worsen it.”

According to Welch, NCHRP Report 650 provides engineers with everything they need to make an informed decision about how to handle a problem intersection and how to approach the task of design. “With this report, we have a good toolbox,” Welch says. “There is no missing information.”

J-turns: States adopt a safer intersection design

One of the median treatments examined in NCHRP Report 650 is the J-turn intersection, which prevents a driver on a minor road from directly crossing the median. Instead, drivers are forced to make a right turn and subsequently a U-turn at some distance from the intersection. Because the J-turn reduces drivers’ exposure to oncoming traffic in the opposing lane, the distance of which can be difficult to judge, the safety benefits can be significant.

“The J-turn is the main tool we consider when we need to address right-angle crashes.”

“Our case study showed that J-turns produced a 48 to 92 percent reduction in

Implementation Strategies AT A GLANCE

- Cost-Efficient Solutions: NCHRP Report 650 spells out rural intersection solutions that increase safety benefits and lower costs. This offers DOTs a fast track to implementation.
- Addressing a High-Profile Research Need: DOTs have expressed keen interest in these solutions, and research-based guidance supports field trials and implementation.
- Proof for the Public and Elected Officials: Research data and supporting materials help satisfy members of the public and lawmakers who need evidence that these new designs work.

crashes, and as much as a 100 percent reduction in more severe right-angle crashes,” says Joshua Hochstein, study co-investigator and Ph.D. candidate at Iowa State University.

“With objective safety data, the report lessens the burden of explaining to the public why these treatments are necessary.”

By the end of the study, state transportation agencies’ interest in J-turns was high. After sharing case studies with agencies during a multistate video conference, researchers had transportation agencies vote on how to prioritize further research into countermeasures. “They voted J-turns to be the highest priority,” Hochstein says.

The only states using J-turns when NCHRP Report 650 was written were Maryland, North Carolina, and Florida, Hochstein says. Since publication of the report, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri, and Louisiana have started using J-turns, and Iowa is considering their use. Minnesota and Missouri are leaders in implementing the treatments, Welch says.

According to Missouri DOT traffic engineer John Miller, Missouri has already installed 12 J-turns with four more in the works. “The J-turn is the main tool we consider when we need to address right-angle crashes,” he says.

Minnesota has constructed about six J-turns and is planning six more, according to Brad Estochen, traffic engineer at Minnesota DOT. “For problem intersections with high-speed angle crashes, J-turns are something we can implement to improve the situation far more quickly and cost-effectively than overpasses,” Estochen says.

A tool for educating the public

However, implementation of J-turns can be a difficult task, often facing fierce public opposition. Minnesota, Missouri, and Iowa have all reported similar problems.

“Drivers want to know why they can’t make a left turn,” Estochen says. “This is something new and nontraditional, and the public can be reluctant to embrace change.”

“J-turns have initially not been well-received here in Missouri,” Miller says. One of the concerns, he notes, is how well agricultural equipment and other large vehicles can navigate the required U-turns. According to

Some J-turn treatment U-turn designs involve bulb-outs to accommodate larger vehicles.

Welch, Iowa also encountered early resistance to its consideration of J-turns.

However, Estochen, Miller, and Welch agree that the safety data and case studies in NCHRP Report 650 can be a crucial resource for educating the public and overcoming such opposition. “We’ve used NCHRP 15-30 as a basis to start having a conversation with the locals about improving the safety and performance of potentially troublesome intersections,” Estochen says. “With objective safety data, the report lessens the burden of explaining to the public why these treatments are necessary. It shows that these treatments, while unfamiliar, have been successfully implemented before.”

“We’ve seen a 90 percent reduction in angle crashes where we’ve installed J-turns.”

“Because of the public reaction, the NCHRP results are handy,” Miller says. “We can point to the large reduction in collisions—and it really helps us sell J-turns.”

Implementation Success

Once installed, the safety benefits of J-turns sell themselves. “We’ve seen a 90 percent reduction in angle crashes where we’ve installed J-turns,” Estochen says. Missouri has had similarly impressive safety results.

“This is one of the most successful NCHRP projects I’ve been involved with. I’m proud to be a part of something that has saved lives.”

Estochen notes that NCHRP Report 650 is a tool not just for educating the public, but also engineers—both new and seasoned—about alternatives to interchanges.

Miller and Welch agree. “This is a really important report,” Miller says. “It’s one I actively share with other staff.”

“This is one of the most successful NCHRP projects I’ve been involved with,” Welch says. “It really identified a need that states had, and I’m proud to be a part of something that has saved lives.” Ultimately the results will be incorporated into AASHTO’s Green Book and the FHWA Manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices, he says.
